

University of Toronto Joint Centre for Bioethics Annual Lectures

ALLOWAY LECTURE

Terms of Reference

The purpose of the Alloway Lecture Series, established by Maranatha Foundation in 1993, is to bring to the University each year one or more experts of international stature in the broad field of bioethics to deliver lectures on topics related to ethical aspects of organ transplantation, when possible, but the Lectures are not limited to this field of medical ethics.

Criteria:

- the speaker has international stature;
- the speaker has made important contributions to the general field of bioethics and hopefully, but not necessarily, to the field of organ transplantation, including its ethical aspects;
- the speaker's work is relevant to the objectives of the JCB; and
- the speaker's approach to bioethical issues is foundationally based on established Judeo-Christian principles.

Previous Speakers

Date/Time/ Location	Speaker	Title
2010	No Lecture
2009	No Lecture
26 September 2008	Tristram Engelhardt, Jr.	An Ethic of Care in the Face of Moral Diversity: Challenges and Possibilities
1 June 2007	Daniel Sulmasy	Is there a Moral Obligation to Address Spiritual Needs of patients and their Caregivers?
2006	Paul Farmer (could not attend)
Oct. 12/05	Vanessa Northingham Gamble	Where's Race in Bioethics?
Nov 10/04	James Tulsky	Going Gently Into the Good Night: Defining and Improving Quality at the End of Life
2003
Dec. 2/02	Leon R. Kass	Why Not Immortality
2001	Edmund Pellegrino	Do patients and physicians need bioethics
30 March 2000	Julia Neuberger	Being reasonable about rationing - making tough decisions
1999
Oct 15/98	James Childress	The failure to give: ethical barriers to obtaining organs for transplantation
Nov 12/97	Daniel Sulmasy	Adam Smith at the bedside: should health care be considered a market commodity?
Wed Nov 6/96	Patricia Benner	The compassionate stranger: exploring caring practices and the ethics of care
Wed Nov 8/95	Mark Siegler	Clinical ethics: its contribution to patient care
Tue Oct 25/94	E. David Cook	Medical moral mazes: theological perspectives
Wed Sep 29/93	Daniel Callahan	Ethics and the medical ambivalence toward death